

Campaign for Nature

Wednesday, May 1, 2024

8:00 am – 3:30 pm

Vollmer Center at Cylburn Arboretum
4915 Greenspring Ave., Baltimore, MD 21209

Sponsored by the Climate Action Group Federated Garden Clubs of Maryland

“Campaign for Nature” is a movement of many conservation and environmental organizations who are working toward the same goal. The basic premise is this: The twin crises of climate change and the rapid loss of biodiversity threaten the very existence of humanity on Earth - but only if we fail to act.

Program Topics & Speakers

- Showing of film “Beautiful Earth” with audience participation and discussion lead by Kris Juffer
- A Dangerous Double Whammy: What a Warming World & Biodiversity Loss Mean for Plants, Pests, and their Natural Enemies, presented by Dr. Michael Raupp, Professor & Extension Specialist at University of Maryland.
- Climate Change and Its Potential impacts on the Birds of Maryland, presented by Kevin Dodge, Professor of Wildlife & Biology, and Director of Natural Resources and Wildlife Technology Program at Garrett College
- Green Forests Work - Restoring Native Forests and Creating Economic Opportunities on Surface Mines across Appalachia. Presented by Michael French, Director of Operations of Green Forests Work.
- Finding Hope: How you can take control and stay positive with everyday actions. Presented by Caroline Blizzard, retired Maryland Park Ranger.
